2022 EFMD Annual Conference

8-10 June, 2022 Prague, Czech Republic

Professor Norio Sawabe and Associate Professor Keiji Murakami attended the 2022 EFMD* Annual Conference (June 8-10, Venue: Prague) hosted by the international accreditation body EFMD. EFMD and EFMD members such as EQUIS accredited schools participated in the conference. We discussed future research and educational development and organizational management of international higher education institutions, and deepened exchanges with EFMD and international business schools.

*EFMD (European Foundation for Management Development) is a non-profit international accreditation organization dedicated to management development for higher education institutions related to business administration (business schools, etc.). It was founded in 1972 and has 972 universities worldwide as members.

EQUIS (EFMD Quality Improvement System) is an international accreditation standard for the quality improvement system operated by EFMD. It is one of the three major international accreditation standards (EQUIS, AACSB, AMBA).

Foreign faculty members

Four foreign faculty members from various backgrounds conduct research and education at GSM.

Asli M. Colpan

Research Fields:
Strategic Management
Corporate Governance
International Business

Message:

For modern businesses to succeed, it is important to take into consideration the unique characteristics of countries and have a balanced view of the global economy. I hope to help students develop such perspectives through my lectures.

William Baber

Research Fields:
Business Negotiation
Cross Cultural Management

Message:

Course emphasis is on communication in the context of international business and cross cultural reality of the English speaking business world. Students analyze real world materials. Students continuously learn and practice key skills that they will need in the real world.

Spring H. Han

Research Fields:
Service Marketing
Hospitality Management

Message:

For the past several decades, growth in the service sector has far exceeded growth of expenditures on tangible goods. Service marketing is based on the value of customers' experiences and processes which are intangible. The success of service marketing lies in understanding continues changing consumers demands and defining a service concept that exceeds their expectations.

Ting LIU

Research Fields:
Human Resource Management
Organizational Behavior

Message:

With the development of globalization, "bridge individuals" with multicultural and multilingual skills are playing a significant role in international business. As "bridge individuals", we will encourage and challenge each other with great curiosity and ambition.

International MBA Programs

Two International Programs are established to provide the education in English. We hope to respond to the expectations of motivated students from various countries through the meticulous, yet demanding educational system.

International Business Administration Program (i-BA Program)

The International Business Administration Program is a course of study that leads to a general management degree while helping you develop your vision and the skills to achieve it. Students get the business knowledge and specialized skills to expand career choices.

This program provides wide area of expertise such as business leadership, service & hospitality management, finance and accounting.

What is the attractiveness of GSM ?

The way in which GSM's classes are conducted is very special, with most courses being highly interactive and built on class discussions. This kind of teaching-method allows students from all different types of backgrounds to express their perspectives and views and makes for a fruitful learning environment.

In addition to this, many of GSM's courses include group projects, which fits with real-life scenarios in many companies and enables students to prepare for their future careers. Compared to many other universities in which classes mainly consist of students simply listening, I believe that this type of learning environment that GSM provides is much more fitting to an MBA program and is more engaging for all students.

The Visions of Your Future

After graduating from GSM, I would like to apply the academic knowledge I have acquired into my career and gain some expertise in the working environment in Japan. I am particularly interested in the fields of logistics, e-commerce and marketing, and hope to attain industry experience within these fields in detail. My ultimate goal for the future would be to carry what I have learnt to my home country, Turkey, and help bridge local companies in their future globalization strategies and assist them in their smooth transition to new markets.

International Project Management Program (i-PM Program)

The International Project Management Program offers a comprehensive and thorough program that focuses on the projects of temporal cooperation between organizations (business teams) established in order to achieve a certain goal in projects such as large-scale international projects, development of new technologies, and development of information systems.

This international program aims at cultivating global-minded project managers with diverse management capabilities.

What is the attractiveness of GSM ?

i-PM program under GSM International MBA is the only program that designs workshops and projects on the area of "Digital Transformation and Innovation" which is the core subject of my research. This is perfectly aligned with my career and the type of industry I have been involved in for years. For example, the work of Professor William Baber offers a realistic study about what actually happens in the business world and how to pragmatically drive corporations towards digital growth. In addition, subjects like Strategic Management, Cross Culture, Negotiation and Human Resource Management are usually taught under the "International Business Track" not "Project Management Track" in some universities. However, in case of the International MBA Program at Kyoto GSM, students have the freedom to study them under i-PM program. Thus, the International Project Management Program of Kyoto GSM is ideal for me.

The Visions of Your Future

After pursuing the master's degree, I will be able to achieve my dream career which is becoming a consultant for different sized organizations to guide them through their DX process. I wish to apply BMI (Business Model Innovation) and witness companies changing their business model to a better one. Having a consultancy start-up of my own for project management is my goal that I hope to fulfil by completing the i-PM program at Kyoto GSM.

International Double Degree Opportunities

Kyoto-Cornell International Collaborative Degree Opportunity (KC-CDO)

Kyoto-Cornell International Collaborative Degree Opportunity is a two-year program made possible by a collaboration of the Graduate School of Management at Kyoto University and The Nolan School of Hotel Administration, SC Johnson College of Business at Cornell University. This program offers an educational curriculum in management and hospitality for nurturing highly advanced global professionals. Our faculty members are distinguished researchers from diverse fields such as leadership, hospitality, marketing, AI and IT management, together with experts who are active on the front lines of business and industry.

Upon completion of the program, students will be conferred an MBA from Kyoto University, and an MMH from Cornell University. By obtaining both degrees, graduates will earn credentials as highly skilled professionals who have hospitality mind to lead various industries.

You can take advantage of this unique international collaborative program. We seek ambitious talents from diverse backgrounds. If you are looking for the place to learn both theories of business administration and their applications in hospitality and service management, this is the program for you.

Features

- Earn two degrees in two years (four semesters)
- Utilize the career management resources of two leading business schools
- Become a member of two great alumni networks
- Study at two leading universities in two great cities: Kyoto, Japan, and Ithaca, New York, U.S.A.

Cornell University

Double Degree in Three Years

After studying for a year and a half at Kyoto University, selected students join the program at National Taiwan University \(Global MBA Program or Accounting Program\) or University of Hamburg \(Hamburg Business School\). Upon completion, students earn two Master's degrees.

National Taiwan University

Being the top business school in Taiwan, NTU College of Management has been highly recognized internationally as well. At the NTU's vast campus, not only domestic students but also international students gather from all over the world, which enables you to study in an international environment while staying in Asia. Moreover, there will be many opportunities to connect with well-known companies, both domestic and foreign-affiliated – the best environment to learn global business based in Asia awaits you. By studying in the two universities, you will be able to learn from different perspectives and establish an international network. This program offers you a chance to broaden your career possibilities.

National Taiwan University

University of Hamburg (Hamburg Business School)

Hamburg Business School has developed study fields that are not yet available at Kyoto University, such as healthcare management, while Kyoto offers the courses that are not offered at Hamburg, including integrated hospitality, tourism, and project management. The program would be a great opportunity to broaden your research interest and relativize the knowledge of management that you learned at your university.

Furthermore, collaborating with people from different backgrounds in the two countries would let you build a wider network and experience Asian and European environments to get ready to be a real global leader.

What is the attractiveness of GSM ?

GSM offers various programs in English from i-BA, i-PM, and Kyoto-Cornell International Collaborative Degree Opportunity which is focusing on creating leaders in hospitality industry. Moreover, the location of GSM is centrally located in such a magical city like Kyoto. For someone who plan to develop a Ryokan hotel and Hot Spring business, Kyoto offers me a great opportunity to do various site visits, get an inspiration from the best properties in the world, and exchange ideas with local entrepreneurs in hospitality industry.

The Visions of Your Future

My ultimate future goal is to go back to my home country 'Thailand' after graduation and create a hospitality group that will manage various hotel brands, restaurants, and service products within the scope of hospitality industry. A success story of Japan tourism to promote its local identities in different regions and attract millions of travelers to visit the country has become such a great inspiration for me as an entrepreneur and I would want to make this success story happens in my home country in the near future.

What Impressed You About GSM ?

With a desire to deal with the latest topics and conduct research on topics related to work, WS has set a research theme of "Corporate Initiatives for CO2 Emission Reduction and Corporate Values." Focusing on the initiatives for CO2 emission reduction, which are an important factor in corporate environmental performance, we empirically examined the impact of the corporate initiatives for CO2 emission reduction on corporate values. With the generous guidance of Professor Ejiri, who is my supervisor at WS, I was able to win the Excellence Award at the final presentation. Another thing that remains in my impression was my participating in a double degree program with National Taiwan University. At National Taiwan University, there is a GMBA program in English and an accounting program in Chinese, so I chose the accounting program. As the only foreign student among the local Taiwanese students, I completed the accounting program in Chinese and was able to obtain degrees from Kyoto University and National Taiwan University.

Message for Prospective Students

In a world where the value of Japanese MBAs is being debated, attention is focused on how Japanese MBA holders will contribute to society. Currently, that evaluation has not necessarily been established yet. Therefore, I think the role you will play as a GSM graduate is very important. Also to open up your future pathways after graduation, I would like you to learn at GSM deeply, richly, and inspiringly. Find something that is unique to you and that is different from others and focus on it. We are often asked if learning at GSM is worth it. To answer this question, I think it's up to you to decide if it's worth it, and how you spend your time at GSM get important here. I would like you to enrol with the enthusiasm of becoming a role model as an MBA holder from Kyoto University.
